July 17, 2013

Ira Fox, M.D., DABPM, FIPP, ABIPP Conference Director and Eugene Pereira M.D., DABPM, FIPP, ABIPP, ABAHPM interventional pain specialists from Anesthesia Pain Care Consultants, are two of ten physicians who will be conducting training for the Latin American conference, a first of its kind to offer pain physicians the most current information on tackling, reducing and eradicating pain.

“It is our honor to work with physicians from Latin America who are dedicated to reducing and eradicating pain,” said Dr. Fox. “Dr. Pereira and I know that by sharing our experience with these doctors, we can help people throughout the Americas who have been living with pain. We hope that this conference will be the first of many to come.”

The goal of the conference is to educate pain physicians from Latin American countries including Brazil and Venezuela about pain management and interventional pain techniques. 32 physicians will be attending the three-day conference, with hands on training during the cadaver workshops.

The symposium will be held at the Miami Anatomical Research Center. Organizers are planning to demonstrate an array of procedures including vertebral compression fracture procedures, percutaneous disc decompression, facet injections, transforaminal epidural steroid injections, radiofrequency denervation and spinal cord stimulation. The program is endorsed by World Institute of Pain.
